

UNIVERSITY OF SEYCHELLES

Campus: Anse Royale & Mont Fleuri

Date: Thursday 14th November 2024

Press Release

For immediate release

Education and Socio-Economic Research Institute

Gender Stereotyping Workshop in Commemoration of International Men's Day

On 19th November 2024, the Education and Socio-Economic Research Institute (ESERI) of the University of Seychelles will host a workshop on gender stereotyping in the Seychelles context, in commemoration of International Men's Day. The workshop will be based on participants' responses to an online survey and follow-up discussions, incorporating previous gender studies from Seychelles and current theoretical models explaining gender structures both locally and internationally. The workshop content is relevant to workplace cultures across Seychelles and serves as an ideal tool for team building and professional development. Professor Mats Deutschmann from the University of Örebro, Sweden, who is also a Research Consultant for the University of Seychelles, will facilitate the workshop.

The event is part of UniSey's 15th anniversary activities and is aimed primarily at male participants from UniSey, along with local representatives of public and private entities. The programme begins at 10:00 am and concludes at 12:00 pm, and will be held at Theatre 2 on UniSey's Anse Royale Campus.

– End –

For more information kindly contact:

Communications Unit - University of Seychelles

Anse Royale, P.O. Box 1348, Victoria, Mahé, Seychelles

Telephone: +248 438 1222 / 2660988 | Email: comms@unisey.ac.sc